

SPORT IN THE NEWS

Formula 1 has introduced new rules for the 2026 season, including changes to engines, energy recovery systems and car design. While these aim to improve sustainability and competition, some believe wealthier teams could gain an advantage because they can invest more in developing new technology.

Do new technologies make sport fairer, or do they create advantages for teams with more money?

Prompt Questions:

- Why do sports introduce new technology or rule changes?
- Should governing bodies limit spending to keep competitions fair?
- Should all teams have equal access to the same technology?
