

This is because many sports involve a range of participants, coaches, officials etc.

This reduces loneliness and can lead to other interests and friendships beyond the activity

Physical activity can cause a sense of belonging to a group

Physical activity can help with friendships and social mixing

This is gained from a common experience or shared activity

This can result in a better ability to manage relationships with others